PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

DAYA-CRAMA-SANGRAHA by Srikrishna Tarkalankar is a work of very great authority of Hindu Law in the Bengal School. Mr Wynch's Translation has long been out of print. The Editor therefore believes that a second edition of this work will be acceptable to the public. In order to enhance its usefulness, he has given foot notes abstracts of important Rulings. A Table of Cases cited, and a Copious Index have been also added.

The Editor deeming it advantageous to the public, has also published the original work, and for easy reference has divided it into Chapters, Sections, and Paragraphs, corresponding to those of its translation.

GORIS CHANDRA TARKALANKARA.

BY

MR. P. M. WYNCH.

THE Translation of the following Treatise on the Hindoo Law of Inheritance was commenced, during a study of the Sanskrit Language and Hindoo Law ; and although sometime ago completed, the publication has been unavoidably retarded, by circumstances connected with the performance of official duty.

Of the Treatise itself, MR. H. COLEBROOKE in the Preface to his Translation of the Dáya-Bhāga and Mitīśharī, has observed : “ An original Treatise by SRI CRISHNA TERCALANCARA, “ entitled Dáya-Crama-Sangraha, contains a good Compendium of the Law of Inheritance, according to JIMUTA VAHANA’s Text, as expounded in his commentary of the Dáya-Bhaga.”

The publication of the original, will be sufficiently justified by this high authority, and under the sanction of it, the Translation was undertaken.

Of the necessity of a careful and diligent study of the Law of Inheritance, the learned gentleman above mentioned, has justly remarked : “ In proportion as the Law of Succession is arbitrary and irreducible to fixed and general principles, it is complex, and intricate in its provisions, and requires on the part of those entrusted with the administration of justice, a previous preparation by study ; for its maxims cannot be rightly understood, when only hastily consulted as occasions arise.”

Under an impression, therefore, that advantage may be derived from the publication of a Compendium on this subject, unembarrassed by argumentative discussion, and unencumbered by lengthened disquisition, this Work is offered, for the purpose of affording assistance to those entrusted with the due administration of justice in the Province of Bengal, who by want of leisure, or other causes, are debarred from an attentive perusal of the admirable Translation of the elaborate Work of JIMUT. VAHANA, or from a recourse to the original.

Should it however, serve but as a guide to the study of either :—Should the English judicial officer through its aid, be better enabled to determine the accuracy, and in consequence, more readily to detect the fallacy of an opinion delivered by the Pundit of his Court, the time devoted to this Publication, will not have been spent in vain.

The mere labor of Translation has been comparatively insignificant, the Treatise being short, and the style of the original, simple and easy.

A Tabular Sketch, exhibiting the successors to the Property of one deceased, and the order in which they are respectively entitled to inherit, has been added to the first Chapter. The numbers affixed in the Table, correspond with those of the marginal notes, in that Chapter :—an arrangement, by which it was intended to facilitate reference.

The Versions of the Texts of the divine Legislator, and of the Sages of Antiquity, cited in this Treatise, have been adopted from the Works of SIR WILLIAM JONES and MR. HENRY COLEBROOKF.

AN ORIGINAL TREATISE

ON THE HINDU LAW OF INHERITANCE.

Having placed in mind the couple of feet of the mother of universe, which feet destroy all perils and which are the cause of creation, preservation and destruction of the millions of worlds, Sreekrishna Surma compiles the Order of Succession which is pleasing to Pundits.*

CHAPTER I.

ON THE ORDER OF SUCCESSION TO THE ESTATE OF A DECEASED MAN.

SECTION 1.

Right of Succession by the Son, Grandson, and Great-Grandson.

1. The order of succession to be observed by heirs in regard to the property of a deceased man, is as follows :
- Order of succession.

* This was omitted by Mr. Wyuch.—G.

2. First, his legitimate son succeeds in conformity with this text. "After the death of the father and mother, the brethren being assembled, must divide equally the paternal estate : For they have not power over it, while their parents live,"* and other texts of a like import which declare the right of the son to succeed on the decease of the father.

3. In default of the son, the grandson takes the inheritance ; and failing him, the

2. Grandson.

3. Great-grandson.

great-grandson. But a grandson^(D) whose father^(B) is dead, and a great-grandson^(F) whose father^(E) and grand-father^(C) are dead, participate equally in the inheritance with the son,^{(A)†} for they without distinction confer equal benefits on the deceased owner of the property, by the presentation to him of funeral offerings at solemn obsequies.

NOTES.

* MENU, 9. 104.

† Owner died, leaving 3 Sons.
A	B	C
Son. (living.)	Son. (dead.)	Son. (dead.)
	D	E
	Grandson. (living.)	Grandson. (dead.)
		Great-grandson. (living.)

4. But during the life-time of their parents, neither the grandson, nor the great-grandson, are entitled to the inheritance, since they do not confer any benefits on the deceased by the presentation of the funeral offering at solemn obsequies.

SECTION 2.

Widow's right of Succession.

1. In default of the (son)* grandson and great-grandson, the widow succeeds to the estate, in conformity with the text of YAJ-NAWALCYA. "The wife and the daughters, also both parents, brothers likewise and their sons, gentiles, cognates, a pupil and a fellow student : On failure of the first among these, the next in order is indeed heir to the estate of one who departed for heaven, leaving no male issue. This rule extends to all classes."(a)

^a The original text stands thus ; "In default of these (the son, grandson and great-grandson,)"—G.

A Hindu widow can dispose of the income of her husband's estate as she pleases ; but her power over accumulations is restricted in the same way as in the case of Corpus. Kailasnath Ghose, 4, Beng. In the case of Chundrabali Dabi, it was ruled that while a Hindu widow could make the fullest use of the usufruct of the estate during her life, whatever part she left behind became the property of the next heir, and was not liable for the widow's personal debts. 9, W. It has also been held that purchases made by a widow, with funds derived from the husband's property, do not belong to her, otherwise than as the land from which the money arose, belonged to them. Nihal Khan, 24th Nov. 1866. 1, N. SECTION 3.

On the right of the Daughter.

1. In default of the wife, the daughter next succeeds in conformity with the following text of DEVALA, (and other texts likewise.) “His own maiden daughter, born in holy wedlock, shall like a son take the inheritance of him who dies without male issue.” “His own,” that is of the same tribe ; “Born in holy wedlock,” legitimate. (d)

2. The unmarried daughter is first entitled to the succession. PARASARA declares, “Let a maiden daughter take the heritage of one who dies leaving no male issue ; or, if there be no such daughter, a married one shall inherit.” (e)

3. The following special rule must be here observed, namely, that, if a maiden daughter in whom the succession had once vested, and who was subsequently married, should die without having borne issue,* the married sister who has, and the sister who is likely to have male issue, inherit together the estate which had so vested in her. It does not become the property of her husband or others, for their right is exclusively to a woman's separate property (Strīdhun.) (f)

* "Without having borne issue." This translation is not in accordance to the text. It should be rendered thus, "without leaving any son."—G.

(f) If one of several daughters, who had, as maidens, succeeded to their father's property, die leaving sons and sisters or sister's sons, then, according to the law of Bengal, the sons alone take the share to which their mother was entitled to the exclusion of the sisters and sister's sons. 1, Macn. H. L., 23; Giris C. ed. 27. Conformably to this doctrine, a case which originated in the zillah Court of Rungpore, was decided by the Sudder Court on the 19th of April 1829, in which it was determined, (3, Sel. Rep., 26; new ed. 35), that property inherited by a maiden daughter goes at her death to her son or grandson, to the exclusion of her sister and sister's son. The above ruling has been followed in a recent case. Radha Kishen Manjee, 6, W. R., 147. These rulings however do not appear to be consistent with the general principles of Hindu law, as the unmarried daughter does not acquire an absolute right in the property inherited by her, and the property therefore on her death ought to go not to her heirs, but to those of her father, who in the case supposed, would be her married sisters, or sisters having male children, or, in their default, the sons of her father's daughters then living, who would take per capita.—This subject has been discussed at great length in the Vyavastha Duxpūn, 2nd ed., 167.

Para. 30, Section 2, Chapter XI. of the Dā. Bh., seems to be conclusive on the point.

In a very recent case it was held that according to the Mitacshara, as well as Daya Bhāga the unmarried daughter takes the whole of the property in preference to her married sisters; but under the Mitacshara she only takes in priority to them and not to the ultimate exclusion of their right to inherit from their father. On her death it goes, according to the ordinary rules, to the next surviving heir of the last full owner of the property. Dowlut Koer, 22, W. R., 54; Chotay Lall, 22, W. R., 496.

A daughter taking her father's property on the death of a widow in default of a son, takes a qualified power as regards alienation; and on her death, the heir of her father succeeds as his, not as her heir. Dev Porshad, 1, W. R., 162; Chotay Lall, 22, Ibid, 496.

daughter who has, and the daughter who is likely to have male issue, are together entitled to the succession, and on failure of either one of them, the other takes the heritage in conformity with the text of PARASARA above cited :—also the text which says “ Being of equal class, and married to a man of a like tribe, and being virtuous and devoted to obedience, she [namely, the daughter] whether appointed or not appointed to continue the male line, shall take the property of her father who leaves no son, [nor wife ;]” and because both descriptions of daughters [appointed, or not appointed] confer without distinction benefits on the deceased owner, by presenting to him through their sons funeral oblations at solemn obsequies.(g)

Married daughters are not excluded from succession by either Dāya Bhāga or Mitaeshara. Benode Koomaree, 2, W. R., 176. The interest of a daughter in the estate of her deceased father, is of the same nature as that of a widow. Hurydas Dutt, 6, M. I. A., 433.

In the case where two daughters succeeded to their father's estate, and one of them died leaving her sister then a childless widow, and a son, a question may arise whether the property inherited by the deceased female would be taken by her son, or would devolve upon the sister though then disqualified to inherit. There are opinions both ways : some lawyers are of opinion that the surviving sister being a childless widow and (therefore) incompetent to inherit, the property should devolve on the son of the deceased.* But others maintained that the surviving sister's being disqualified to inherit at the time of her sister's death is no bar to her taking her father's property left by the sister, because she does not inherit her sister's property so that her disqualification at the time of her death should not be taken into consideration and because like wives† the

5. The doctrine maintained by DICSHITA, and respected by the author of the Dāya-Bhāga, namely, That in default of daughters having, and daughters likely to have male issue, daughters who are barren, and widows, destitute without male issue, do not succeed to the estate of male issue, are incompetent to take the inheritance, because they cannot benefit the deceased owner by offering [through the medium of sons] the funeral oblation at solemn obsequies, should be understood. (h) two daughters were, in the legal sense, held to be one and the same heir collectively succeeding to, and holding, their father's property, which on the death of one would of course remain in the hands of the other. This (atter) opinion is maintained by the High Court in its Original Jurisdiction, see Case No. 66 of 1865. Baidya Nath Sett v. Doorga Churn Bysak decided 28th of Feb. 1865, by Hon. W. Morgan who consulted the Hon. Shumbhoo Nath Pundit on the point in question, Vyavastha Durpun, 2nd ed. 170; And the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council held out similar views viz. that according to Hindu law, a right once vested in a daughter by inheritance does not cease until her death, notwithstanding that she became barren, or a widow who had not borne a son. Circumstances of that nature do not destroy a heritable right which has once vested. Therefore when two sisters upon the death of their mother, together become their father's heir, then upon the death of one of them, the property which descended to both jointly, survives to the other whose right of survivorship was previously acquired by inheritance and is not destroyed by her disqualification to inherit at that time by reason of her being a childless widow. Anrit Lal Bose v. Rajance Kant Mitter, 23, W. R., 214; 15, B. L. R. 10.

In the case of Bugwandeen Dobay v. Mayna Bacc, 11, M. I. A. 487; 9, W. R., P. C., 23. It was similarly held by the Judicial Committee that the estate of two widows, who take their husband's property by inheritance is one estate. "The right of survivorship" it is there said is so strong, that the survivor takes the whole property, to the exclusion even of daughter of the deceased widow.

SECTION 4.

On the right of the Daughter's Son.

1. In default of all daughters [who are entitled to succeed,] the daughter's son takes the inheritance according to the text, "Let the daughter's son take the whole estate of his own father who leaves no [other] son; and let him offer two funeral oblations; one to his own father, the other to his maternal grandfather,*" and other texts of a like import. "Of his own father," here means his mother's father.† Leaving "no [other] son," is here used indefinitely to signify a failure of heirs, including the daughter, otherwise it would contradict the text of YAJNAWALKYA, "The wife and daughters, &c." 2. The opinion maintained by GOVINDA RAJA, namely, That on failure of a son, [grandson and great-grandson] the daughter's son is entitled to the inheritance notwithstanding the existence of the daughter, is consequently refuted by the text above quoted.

3. The followers of the Maithila school assert, that the daughter's son is entitled to the heritage after the whole of the heirs enumerated in the text of YAJÑAWALKYA just alluded to, and in other various texts. This is wrong; for since a series of heirs is recounted, ending with the king, whose demise never occurs, it must necessarily result that the daughter's son could not obtain the inheritance at all, and the texts declaratory of his right would then be irrelevant.(k)

✓ The author of Vivada Chintamani, a Mithila Work, has omitted the daughter's son from the series of heirs; but according to other authorities, including Mithila legal writers, the right of the daughter's son, next to a daughter, is declared. In a claim by a daughter's son, the Court held that such daughter's son is heir, disregarding his omission in the said work, and thus ruling that the position in the Daya Crama Sangraha, that a daughter's son, according to Mithila writers, is not an heir, is erroneous. Soorja Kumari, 6, Sel. Rep. 142; new ed. 168.

also, because he (the father) confers benefits on the deceased owner by the presentation of two funeral oblations (namely, to his own father and grandfather) in which the deceased owner participates. VACHESPATI MISRA, (and others) by adopting a different reading in this text of VISHNU, "The wealth of him who leaves no male issue, goes to his wife : on failure of her, it devolves on daughters : if there be none, it belongs to the father : if he be dead, it appertains to the mother," namely, "If there be none, it belongs to the mother, and if she be dead, it appertains to the father," have declared the mother's right of succession to precede that of the father.⁽¹⁾

2. This is not correct ; for the reading established by the original text of VISHNU, is the reverse [of that which they have adopted] namely, "If there be none, it belongs to the father, if he be dead, it appertains to the mother." It has also been thus transcribed by all authors ;—Besides the other reading is at variance with the text of CATYAYANA above cited ; and further, since the superiority of the male is deduced from the following part of a text of MENU, "In a comparison between the male and female sex, the male is pronounced the

2. VRIHASPATI also says, "Of a deceased son, who leaves neither wife nor male issue, the mother must be considered as heiress, or by her consent the brother may inherit:" for the mother confers benefits on the deceased owner by the birth of his brother, who offers three funeral oblations to the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather of the deceased owner in which he participates.

SECTION 7.

On the Brother's right of Succession.

1. On failure of the mother, the succession goes to the uterine or whole brother, who offers three funeral oblations to the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather of the deceased owner, in which he participates. (n)

2. If there be no uterine or whole brother, the half brothers of the same class with the deceased are entitled to the succession, since they also offer three funeral oblations to the father and the other ancestors above named of the deceased owner in which he participates, and because the text of YAJNAWALCYA specifies, "Both parents,

A mother is entitled to be recognized as heir to her son, notwithstanding her second marriage. Akora Suth, 2, B. L. R., A. C., 199.

brothers likewise," [Sec. ii. § i.] the succession devolves on sons born of a different mother, for they are begotten by the same father. (o)

3. Hence if there are two brothers, the one uterine, and the other a half brother, and both were unassociated with the deceased owner, the uterine brother exclusively takes the wealth of his uterine brother in conformity with the text. "An uterine brother shall thus retain or deliver the share of his uterine relation." (p)

4. Where an associated half brother, and an unassociated whole brother are the competitors for the succession, it devolves equally on both of them in conformity with the text. "A half brother being again associated, may take the succession." (q)

5. Where uterine and half brothers compete, and both were associated with the deceased, the associated whole brother exclusively takes the inheritance, for in this case he possesses a double title [namely, his being uterine, and also associated,] in conformity with the text. "A reunited [brother] shall keep the share of his reunited [coheir] who is deceased." (r)

6. The same order of succession must likewise be observed in the case of nephews of the whole and nephews of the half blood.

SECTION 8.

On the Nephew's right of Succession.

1. In default of brothers, the brother's son of the whole blood is the successor, and not a nephew of the half blood who confers less benefits compared with the brother's son of the whole blood, since the mother and grandmother of the deceased owner do not participate in the oblations presented by the nephew of the half blood to the father and grandfather [of such deceased owner.*]

NOTE.

Here the mother, and grandmother of the deceased owner do not participate in the oblation, which the nephew of the half blood is bound to offer to his grandfather and great-grandfather, since his (the nephew's) descent in the female line is derived from a different family.

2. The participation of a mother, a grandmother, and great-grandmother, in the funeral oblations presented by the oblator to the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather respectively, is recounted in the following passage of scripture. "The mother participates in the funeral oblation made to the manes of her husband : So also do the grandmother, and great-grandmother" [participate in oblations made to the grandfather and great-grandfather.]

3. Among brother's sons associated and unassociated, all of the whole blood, the succession devolves exclusively on the associated brother's son.

4. In like manner, in the case of associated and unassociated brother's sons, all of the half blood, the succession devolves on the associated brother's son of the half blood.

5. But if the son of the whole brother were unassociated, and the son of the half brother associated, then they both inherit together.

6. Where however two nephews were either associated, or unassociated with the deceased, one of the whole, the other of the half blood, then in both instances the succession devolves on the nephew of the whole blood.

In default of brother, brother's sons succeed, taking per capita and not per stirpes; but brothers' sons are totally excluded by the existence of brothers. Brojorajkishoree, 9, W.  since they confer no benefits, because they stand in the

3. Failing him, the paternal grandfather is the successor, for as the father is entitled to succeed on a failure of the heirs of the deceased owner ending with the daughter's son, so by the rule of analogy the succession devolves on the grandfather in default of heirs down to the father's daughter's son ; and because he presents one oblation (namely, to the owner's paternal great-grandfather, i. e., his own father) in which the deceased owner participates.

Under that law the great grandsons of the paternal great-grandfather can inherit in preference to the brother's daughter's son, because, although the former can offer but one oblation and the latter two, yet that offered by the former being for a paternal ancestor, is of a superior religious efficacy to those offered by the latter, which are for maternal ancestors only. Gobind Prosad Talookdar, 15, B. L. R., 35; 23, W. R., 117; Case No. 208 of 1875, Regular Appeal, Juggutnarain Singh, Appellant, decided by Garth, C. J., and Morris, J., on 31st May 1877. According to the Hindu law current in Bengal, a brother's daughter's son being a cognate Sapinda is a heir to the great great grandfather's great son.

The text of VRIHASPATI declares, " That where there are many relatives, (Gnatayah) or remote kindred, (Saculyáh) or cognate kindred, (Vandhuah) whoever is nearest of kin, shall take the wealth of him who dies without male issue." Propinquity of kin must be considered with reference

 The goods of a hermit, ascetic, and professed student.

36. On failure of these, the associate in holiness, or person belonging to the same order, inherits. Thus YAJÑAWALKYA. “The heirs of an hermit, of an ascetic, and of a professed student are in their order the preceptor, the virtuous pupil, and the spiritual brother, and associate in holiness.” “Order,” that is the inverse order ; Therefore the preceptor takes the goods of the professed student : the virtuous pupil those of the ascetic, and the spiritual brother and associate in holiness, that

37. The professed student is of two descriptions, perpetual and temporary. The preceptor inherits the goods possessed by a perpetual student, for he abandons his father and the rest, making a vow of residing for life in his preceptor's family. But the property of a temporary student would be inherited by his father, and other relations, since he does not enter on any such vow, and merely attends his preceptor for the purpose of instruction.

bridegroom, for a bridegroom has a right to wealth given by himself.

The text of PAITHINASI recites,

“The bridegroom shall take the gratuity given by himself, and NAREDA says, “Let the first bridegroom on his return take back the presents he gave to the damsel, who has since been married ; and in case of her death likewise, let him receive back what he gave, after defraying the expences which they have mutually incurred.”

SECTION 2.

Definition of the peculiar Property of a Married Woman.

1. The peculiar property of a woman is in the first place defined, for the purpose of afterwards describing the order of succession to such property when belonging to a married woman. On this subject NARADA says, "What was given before the nuptial fire, what was presented in the bridal procession, her husband's donation, and what has been given by her brother, or by either of her parents, is termed the six-fold property of a woman." (2)

2. Here the number six must not be considered as restrictively used ; since it will be hereafter declared that woman's peculiar property is of many descriptions. CATYAYANA describes a gift before the nuptial fire. "What is given to women at the time of their marriage, near the nuptial fire, is celebrated by the wise as the woman's peculiar property bestowed before the nuptial fire." (3)

3. "The time of their marriage," that is the time occupied by the ceremony, commencing with the performance of funeral obsequies for departed ancestors,

(2) Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch. IV., Sect. I., paras. 4-5.—Vyv. Durp., 681.

(3) Personal property given to a woman at the time of her marriage becomes her's exclusively. 2, Macn. H. L., 122. Frankishen Sing, 1, Sel. Rept., 4.

and concluding with the (Abhivad, or) prostration of the husband at the feet of his wife.(4)

4. Property received by the woman during this time is denominated "Yautuca," or property given at a marriage, conformably to the meaning of the root, "Yu," which signifies to mix, and the mixture here alluded to, is that which results from the union by marriage of the man and woman, who become as it were one and the same body. The following passage of scripture declares. "Her bones become identified with his bones, flesh with flesh, skin with skin."

5. VYASA also says, "Whatever is presented at the time of the nuptials to the bridegroom, intending [the benefit of the bride,] belongs entirely to the bride ; and shall not be shared by the kinsmen."

6. "Intending;" That which is given to the bridegroom, delivered into his hand, accompanied by an expression of the intention, such as "Let this belong to the bride," and not any thing given without this intention ; Such is the meaning.

7. Therefore the expression of "Before the nuptial fire," occurring in the text before cited, and that

(4) Vyv. Durp., 682.

Such property is her Soudayaca Stridhanum. Gosain Chund Kobraj, 6, Sel. Rep., 77, new ed., 90. A gift of money by a son to his mother for maintenance is her Stridhanum. *Mt. of "The time of their marriage," in the text since quoted, are both illustrative. Since whatever is delivered into the hand of the bridegroom, intending the benefit of the bride, becomes her's, such intention must therefore be considered as the foundation of her property therein. The mention therefore of the "bridegroom" must be taken figuratively, for wealth delivered into the hand of any other with that intention, would equally become the exclusive property of the bride.

8. CATYAYANA describes a gift presented in the bridal procession. "That again which a woman receives while she is conducted from the parental [abode, to her husband's dwelling] is instanced as the separate property of a woman under the name of gift presented in the bridal procession."(5)

9. The term "parental," being derived from a compound expression, of which only one part is retained, the presents which she receives from the family of either her father, or mother, while proceeding to the house of her husband, are gifts presented in the bridal procession.

10. "Her husband's donation," is wealth given to her by her husband, as indeed appears from the use of the expression in another text of CATYAYANA. "Let the woman place her husband's donation as she pleases, when he is deceased; but while he lives, she should carefully preserve it, or else commit it to the family."

(5) Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch. IV., paras. 5, 6, 7, 8, 13, 15.—Vyv Dimp, 381, 682, 684.

11. It must not be argued that the word dāya (donation) here used, relates to the wealth of her husband ; for the latter part of the text above cited, "but while he lives, she should carefully preserve it," would then be irrelevant, and it is moreover impossible that during the life-time of the husband his wealth should go to his wife.

12. Nor does the term "husband's donation" apply to the heritage devolving to the wife on the decease of her husband ; for the mention of it occurs in a chapter treating of the peculiar property of a woman, and heritable wealth does not form her peculiar property ;—Supposing such to be the case, the sense of the verb "dā," to give, would then become metaphorical.

13. "Commit it," deposit it ; "The family."—Her husband's family, his younger brother and the rest.

14. "Or else," that is, if unable to preserve it herself. Thus YAJNAWALKYA. "What has been given to woman [before or after her nuptials] by the father, the mother, the husband, or a brother, or received by her at the nuptial fire, or presented to her on her husband's marriage to another wife, as also any other separate acquisition, is denominated woman's property."(6)

(6) Personal property given by a man to his wife, on contracting a second marriage, is her's absolutely. 2, Macn. H. L., 215 ; aliter as to reality Ibid.

15. Wealth given by a man for the sake of gratifying his first wife when desirous of espousing a second, is called a gift on a second marriage, since the intention of it is to obtain another wife.

16. So DEVALA says, "Her subsistence, her ornaments, her perquisite, and her gains, are the separate property of a woman. She herself exclusively enjoys it; and her husband has no right to use unless in distress." "Subsistence," food, and raiment.(7)

17. CATYAYANA describes the fee or perquisite. "Whatever has been received as a price of workmen on houses, furniture, beasts of burden, milk, animals, and ornaments, is denominated a fee." That is termed a fee, which a woman receives from others as a douceur for influencing her husband, an architect or other description of artist, to expedite the completion of their business, such as the construction of a house, or other kind of work. It is the price in fact which she receives for sending her husband [to the employment.]

18. "Furniture," brooms, &c. "Beasts of burden," bulls, &c. "Milk animals," milch cows, &c. "Gains," a treasure discovered, &c.

19. Thus VISHNU says, "What has been given to a woman by her father, her mother, her son, or her brother, what has been received by her before the

(7) Ornaments freely given by a man to his wife are her own property, and descend to her heirs. Gun Joshee Malkhoonder. 2, Bom. S. D., 401; 1, Mor. Dig., 595. nuptial fire, what has been presented to her, on her husband's espousal of another wife, what has been given to her by kindred, as well as her perquisite, and a gift subsequent, are a woman's separate property.' By "kindred," maternal uncles are indicated.

20. DEVALA describes "a gift subsequent," "What has been received by a woman from the family of her husband at a time posterior to her marriage, is called a gift subsequent, and so is that which is similarly received from the family of her kindred. Whatever is received by a woman after her nuptials from her husband, or from her parents, through the affection of the giver, Bhrigu pronounces to be a gift subsequent."

21. "From the family of her kindred." Here by the word "kindred," her father and mother are [also] intended.

22. Therefore any thing received after the marriage from persons related through her husband, such as her father-in-law and others, or from persons related through the father and mother, namely, maternal and paternal grandfathers, is termed a gift subsequent. Such is the meaning of the first text, and the meaning of the second text is that any thing received posterior to the marriage, either from her husband, or from her parents, is also termed a "gift subsequent."

23. Since various sages have recounted woman's peculiar property as comprizing sundry descriptions, the number six specified in the text of "NAREDA,"

(§ 1) is not to be respected, and the different texts must therefore be considered as generally descriptive of woman's peculiar property.

24. A woman's property may then be briefly defined to be that wealth which independent of her husband's control she has a right to dispose of at pleasure, recognized as this right is by law which CATYAYANA has declared.

25. "The wealth which is earned by mechanical arts, or which is received through affection from any other [but the kindred] is always subject to the husband's dominion. The rest is pronounced to be the woman's property."(8)

26. "That which is received by a married woman, or a maiden, in the house of her husband or of her father, from her parents, is termed the "gift of affectionate kindred." The independence of women who have received such gifts is recognized in regard to that property, for it was given by their kindred to soothe them, and for their maintenance. The power of woman over the gifts of their affectionate kindred is ever celebrated, both in respect of donation and of sale according to their pleasure, even in the case of immoveables."(9)

• (8) Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch. IV., Sect. IV. paras. 19—23.

Property left as a legacy to a woman by her husband's or her own action, is Stridhanum, and her husband has no right to it, but if it be given to her by a stranger, she cannot part with it, without her husband's consent. Ram Doolal Sircar. Easte's Notes, Case XLV. 2, Mor. Dig., 56.

(9) Immoveable property given by a man to his grandson's wife is ver peculium. She has absolute dominion over it. 2, Macn. II. L., 213.

27. He explains the meaning of the word "rest," (§ 25) by the text which follows (§ 26.) "That which is received by a married woman," &c.

28. "From any other." The husband has authority over that which the woman has obtained from any other excepting the family of her father, mother, or husband, or in that which she has gained by the exercise of an art, such as painting, or spinning. He is entitled to take it even without the occurrence of any distress.

29. Therefore notwithstanding the woman has ownership in both descriptions of property, she has no independent power in regard to it; On the contrary, appearing from the text that her husband has authority over such property, his permission authorizing the disposal of it must be awaited by the woman.

30. "Pronounced to be the woman's property," that is declared alienable by the woman at her own pleasure "By a married woman," &c. That which is received by a married woman from the family of her husband, or from the family of her parents, and by a damsel from the family of her parents, is the "gift of affectionate kindred;" Such is the meaning. "To soothe them," that is through a motive of tenderness.

31. "Even in the case of immoveables," relates to immoveable property other than that which has been bestowed upon her by her husband, for a prohibition exists against the gift or sale by a woman in regard to immoveable property given to her by her husband; So

NAREDA, "What has been given by an affectionate husband to his wife, she may consume as she pleases when he is dead, or may give it away, excepting immoveable property." (10)

32. Since "given by her husband," is here particularly specified the general text of CATYAYANA above quoted, must be considered applicable to immoveable property, other than bestowed by a husband, in conformity with the principle which admits of a special provision limiting the operation of a general rule.

33. But the husband is at liberty during a period of famine and the like when unable to subsist without the use of the woman's separate property, to take such property even though it be the gift of affectionate kindred. Thus YAJNAWALCYA "A husband is not liable to make good the property of his wife taken by him in a famine, or for the performance of a duty, or during illness, or while under restraint." (11)

34. "While under restraint," which a creditor or other person imposes on himself for the purpose of recovering his right, being debarred at the same time from ablution, from food, &c. CATYAYANA has declared the husband to have no right to the use of the woman's separate property [as before described] during the non-existence of any such calamity as a famine or the like.

35. "Neither the husband, nor the son, nor the father, nor the brothers, can assume the power over a woman's property to take it or to bestow it. If any one of these persons by force consume the woman's property, he shall be compelled to make it good with interest, and shall also incur a fine. If such person having obtained her consent, use the property amicably, he shall be required to pay merely the principal when he becomes rich. But if the husband have a second wife, and do not shew honor to his first wife, he shall be compelled by force to restore her property, though amicably lent to him. If food, raiment and dwelling be withheld from the woman, she may exact her due supply, and take a share [of the estate] with the coheirs."

36. "Make it good with interest," that is the woman's separate property taken by force in the form of a loan must be rendered with interest; The word "with interest," [Savridhim] must not be supposed a discriminative of (Stridhunu) "the woman's separate property," for supposing this to be the case, Savridhi would be the proper form in which the word would appear.

37. "Merely the principal;" Here the insertion of the word "merely," is intended to preclude [the payment of] interest.

38. "But if," &c. the meaning of which is, that if the husband after making use of the separate property of one wife, reside with another wife, and neglect the former, he shall be compelled by the ruling power to restore such property, even though it had been amicably lent.

39. "Food and raiment;" Should the husband not allow his wife the necessaries of life, food and clothing, then she may, if immaculate, require the supply of food and raiment, which is her due.

40. "Dwelling," place of residence.

41. "A share," that is, on the death of her husband, she is to receive from his coheirs, his younger brother, and the rest, the share to which he was entitled. Let this suffice. Further detail being superfluous, the subject in question is therefore propounded.

SECTION 3.

On the Succession to the Separate Property of a Woman when received by her at her Nuptials.

4. A text of GAUTAMA expresses, that a woman's property goes to her "daughters unaffianced and to those not actually married." (1)

5. Here as by the word "daughters," the right of succession by all the daughters is generally declared, the mention of "unaffianced," &c. becomes significant, as denoting the order in which they shall respectively inherit, and therefore first the maiden succeeds; then the affianced daughter, that is, one whose troth is plighted; in her default, the married daughter described as above, and failing her, the succession devolves equally on the barren and the widowed daughters. This is the meaning of the text.

6. Here however on the death of a maiden daughter, or of one affianced, in whom the succession had vested, and who having been subsequently married, is ascertained to have been barren, or on the death of a widow who has not given birth to a son, the succession

(1) A betrothed daughter is not entitled, at her mother's death, to share in her Stridhana; but the unbetrothed daughter alone inherit with the sons. Srinath Gangapadhyā, 2, B. L. R., 144, A. C.

to the property which had passed from the mother to her daughters, would devolve next on the sisters, having, and likely to have male issue, and in their default, on the barren and widowed daughters ;—not on the husband of such daughter above-mentioned in whom the succession had vested : for the right of the husband is relative to the “ Woman's separate property,” and wealth which has in this way passed from one to another, can no longer be considered as the “ Woman's separate property ;”—This must be understood.(2)

7. The right of the barren, and widowed daughters to succeed, notwithstanding they confer no direct benefits through the medium of sons, is gathered from the text of GAUTAMA above quoted, which declares the right of succession by the daughters generally, whether married, or unmarried.

8. In default of all daughters, the son has a right to succeed : for the text of YAJNA-
 The son. WALCYA declares the right of the son to succeed on failure of daughters by the terms “ male issue,” expressed in this text, “ Daughters share the residue of their mother's property after payment

I. p. 38, Iris C. ed 44) says expressly, that Stridhanum which has once devolved according to the Law of Succession which governs the descent of this peculiar species of property, ceases to be ranked as such, and is ever afterward governed by the ordinary rules of inheritance. Coleb. Da. Bh., Chap. XI. Sect. II. para. 30. Srinath Gungopadhya, 2, B. L. R., 144. A. C. ; Prankishen Sing, 1, Sel. of her debts ;--the male issue succeeds in their default," and because the son compared with all the rest, confers the greatest benefits ; The text of BAUDHAYANA also declares, that " Male issue of the body being left, the property, must go to them."

9. In default of the son, the daughter's son inherits, for it is reasonable, that since the daughter's son, the daughter's claim is preferred to that of the son, the son of the debarred son should be excluded by the son of the person who bars his claim.

10. Failing the daughter's son, the son's son succeeds, and in his default, the great-grandson in the male line, according to the degree in which benefits are conferred by them.

11. In default of the great-grandson in the male line, the son of a rival wife succeeds, for the text of VRIHASPATI recites that, "The mother's sister, the maternal uncle's wife, the paternal uncle's wife, the father's sister, the mother-in-law, and the wife of an elder brother are declared similar to mothers." " If they leave no issue of their bodies, nor son, [of a rival wife] nor daughter's son, nor son of those persons, the sister's son and the rest, shall take their property." (3)

(3) According to the author of Dāya Bhāga (Jimut Vahana), the right of the daughter's son follows that of the contemporary wife's son. Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch IV. Sect. III., para. 33. See also Summary on Stridhana.

12. The term "son," which occurs as above, "nor son," is intended to propound the right of succession by the son of a rival wife ; otherwise, it is useless to consider it as a discriminative of "Uorusa," meaning of itself "legitimate issue ;" and it would also follow that the younger brother of the woman's husband and the rest would have a right to succeed notwithstanding the existence of the son of a rival wife.

13. In default of the son of the rival wife, her grandson succeeds ; and failing him,

The brother.

16. The term "kindred," means her mother and father, and consequently by the term "kinsmen," her brothers are signified. The same is declared by CATYAYANA, who says, "Immoveable property, which has been given by parents to their daughter, goes always to her brother, if she die without issue."—Here since the terms "immoveable property," are used, other property is of course intended by the argument drawn from the loaf and staff.* Thus it is stated in the Dāya Bhūga. By the use of the term "always," it appears, that the eight forms of marriage, namely, Brahma and the rest are included.

17. "Fee or gratuity" has been before explained, as also the "gift subsequent." Failing the brother, the

* This example of analogy to which frequent allusion is made in argumentative writings, is variously stated. According to one explanation, the reasoning exemplified by it, is analogy drawn from association. According to another, it is argument à fortiori.—COLEBROOKE.

The “fee of a damsel,” that is, her wealth, belongs first to her uterine brothers ; in their default, it goes to the mother ; and after her to her father.—“Some hold,” &c. meaning in the opinion of others ; but according to our interpretation, the father first inherits, and afterwards the mother. Such is the meaning.

der of succession, for if it had been intended that the mother and father should inherit together, the form "Pitroh" would have been observed.

21. In default of the father, the brother succeeds, and failing the brother, the succession devolves on the husband[†] according to the text of CATYAYANA, "That which has been given to her by her kindred, on failure of kinsmen, goes to her husband."

22. "Kindred," mother and father :—" On failure of kinsmen," by which the failure of the brother must be understood ; because [in the instance of wealth received by the woman at the time of nuptials, celebrated in one of the five forms called Brahma, &c.] the parents succeed only in the case of a failure of the brothers.

SECTION 4.

On the Order of Succession to the Separate Property of a Woman, when not received by her at her Nuptials.

1. The order of succession requisite to be observed in regard to woman's peculiar property, generally, whether "Yautuca" or "Ayautuca" on a failure of heirs including all as yet enumerated, will be hereafter declared. But first we treat of the order of succession in regard to wealth not received by the woman at the time of nuptials termed "Ayautuca."

2. In the case of the peculiar property of a woman
 The son and unmarried daughter inherit together. [not obtained by her at the time of nuptials, and] not given to her by her father at the time of the wedding, or at any other time, the son and the unmarried daughter inherit together.(a)

3. This is declared by the first half of the following passage of DEVALA, "A woman's property is common to her sons and unmarried daughters when she is dead ; but if she leave no male issue, her husband shall take it, her mother, her brother or her father."

4. Since the words "sons and unmarried daughters" are exhibited in the conjunctive compound (called "Dvundvū"), and because the words "common to" are here expressed, it results that the son and the unmarried daughter possess the right of inheritance together, and in default of either of them, the wealth goes to the other.

5. On failure of both these two, the succession devolves equally on the married daughter, who has, and the married daughter, who is likely to have male issue—for a text of NAREDA recites, "In default of a son, let a daughter take the succession, for they are both offspring alike :"—and because oblations at solemn obsequies are presented by the daughter through the medium of her son, to the hus-

 And failing one the other ; then, The son's son, ceeds, and on failure of both of them the son's son inherits, for he presents an oblation at solemn obsequies to the husband of the woman, of which she partakes.

 The daughter's son : the claim of the married daughter is barred by the son, that the son of the debarred daughter, should be debarred by the son of the person who obstructs her claim : and a text of MENU reciting that, " A daughter's son delivers him in the next world like the son of a son,"* declares the right of the daughter's son to succeed.

8. "Like the son of a son." From this expression it results, that when there is no longer an adverse claim, the daughter's son has a right to succeed after the son's son.

ing to any one of the five forms, denominated cording to any of the three forms, styled Asura, &c. on her mother, father, brother and husband.(a)

Jimuta Vahana (author of Dayabhaga.) In Dayabhaga, Chap. IV., Sec.

III., verse 10, he holds that wealth received by a woman after her marriage, from the family of her father, of her mother, or of her husband, goes to her brothers (not to her husband's) and cites as authority the text of Yajnyawalkya "That which has been given to her by her kindred, as well as her fee or gratuity", and any thing bestowed after marriage, her kinsmen take, if she die without issue. Srikrishna in this work cites the above text of Yajnyawalkya, and holds that husband succeeds first and then brother. See V. 15, Sec. III. Chap. II. Cal. High Court, in the case of Jadunath Sircar v. Basant Coomar Roy Chowdhery 11, B. L. R., page 286. Norman, C. J., held that husband is preferential heir to the mother in respect of property bequeathed to a daughter by her father before her marriage. But Jackson and Mitter, JJ held that according to Hindoo law current in Bengal the mother succeeds to the property of her daughter bequeathed to her by her father before her marriage in preference to her husband. In a recent case of Hurry Mohun Shaha v. Sonaton Shaha reported in 1, I. L. R., Cal., p. 372 it has been held that with respect to property given to a woman after her marriage by her husband's father's sister's son, the brother, mother and father are preferable heirs to the husband's.

widowed daughters, and in default of all daughters, the son and the rest succeed, as in the case of property received at nuptials; for a text of MENU declares, "The wealth of a woman which has been in any manner given to her by her father, let the Brahmani damsel take, or let it belong to her offspring."^{*}

4. Here by the specification of "given by the father," it is intended, that whatever has been given by the father even at any other time than that of the wedding, belongs first to the damsel, and after her, it goes to her offspring,—her son. (a)

5. The expression Brahmani damsel, is merely an illustrative recitation ("Anoovadu."*) Thus it is stated in the Dáya Bhága.

The husband's younger brother succeeds. husband's younger brother : for the right of the husband's younger brother and the rest to succeed at that time, has been propounded by VRIHASPATI in the following text : " The mother's sister, the maternal uncle's wife, the paternal uncle's wife, the father's sister, the mother-in-law, and the elder brother's wife are pronounced similar to mothers :—If they leave no issue of their bodies, nor son, [of a rival wife,] nor daughter's son, nor son of those persons, the sister's son and the rest shall take the property."

2. The word (" Uorus") " issue," in this text implies both son and daughter. " Nor son" must be considered as intending the " son of a rival wife." It must not be supposed discriminative of the word " issue," since it would be unmeaning, and it would follow that the succession devolved on the husband's younger brother and the rest, even while the son of a rival wife were existent. " Nor son of those persons : " Here by " those persons," the son, and the son of the contemporary (or rival) wife are intended :—the expression does not refer to the damsel and daughter's son, for the damsel's son is included in the term daughter's son, and the daughter's son's son confers no benefits, being incompetent to present the funeral offering : [to the woman's husband.] By the term ["va,"] "nor," the sons of the son, and of the son of the rival wife are to be understood. But the order of succession prescribed by the above text is not to be respected ; for if this were the case, it would follow, that the husband's younger brother succeeded last, and this would be improper, since he confers greater benefits than all the others who are specified in that text ; and the following texts of MENU, "To three ancestors must water be given at their obsequies ; for three, (the father, his father, and the paternal grandfather) is the funeral cake ordained :"* "To the nearest Sapinda the inheritance next belongs,"† are recited in a treatise of inheritance, for the purpose of exhibiting that the order of succession takes place according to the greater or less benefits conferred ; otherwise, the introduction of them in such a treatise would be useless ; consequently the order of succession must be understood as taking place according to the proximity of benefits conferred, and this being the case, the order inferrible from the spirit of the text, rather than that derived from the letter of it, must be respected.

3. Therefore the husband's younger brother is first entitled to the succession, because he presents oblations to the woman, to her husband, and to three persons

NOTE.

* MENU 9, 186.

† MENU 9, 187.

to whom her husband was bound to offer oblations, and he is moreover a "Sapinda."

4. In his default, the succession devolves at once upon the sons of the husband's younger and elder brother, because they present oblations to the woman, to her husband, and to two persons to whom her husband was bound to offer oblations, (namely to his father and grandfather,) and they are moreover within the degree of relationship, termed "Sapinda."

5. In their default, the sister's son, though not a Sapinda, is entitled to the succession : for he presents oblations to the woman and to three persons, namely, her father and the rest to whom her son was bound to offer oblations.

6. Failing him, the husband's sister's son : for he presents oblations to her, to her husband, and to three persons to whom her husband ought to have offered oblations.

7. In his default, the [woman's] brother's son, who presents oblations to the woman, and to her father and grandfather.

8. Failing him, the son-in-law, who presents oblations to his father-in-law and mother-in-law.

9. VRIHASPATI's text above quoted, propounds therefore merely the right of succession by the persons above-mentioned, and is by no means intended to exhibit the order in which they succeed.

10. Failing all these heirs including the son-in-law, the father-in-law, and the husband's elder brother, who are Sapindas, succeed according to their nearness of kin.

11. In default of all Sapindas, the "Saculyas," those allied by common oblations of water, and those descended from the same patriarch in the male line, succeed.

12. Failing all these, in the case of the property of a Brahmani woman, Brahmanas, inhabitants of the same village, exceedingly learned in the Vedas, are entitled to the succession.

13. But in the case of the property of a woman of the king, the Chsetriya and other tribes, the king is exclusively entitled to the inheritance.

CHAPTER III.

ON EXCLUSION FROM INHERITANCE.

1. Those who are excluded from inheritance are now specified, from which exception, those who are competent to inherit, will appear : Thus MENU, "Impotent persons and out-casts, persons born blind, and deaf; madmen, idiots, the dumb, and those who have lost a sense or a limb,"* are excluded from a share of the heritage.—A text of CATYAYANA has more particularly defined the impotent person.(a)

2. "Born blind and deaf." That is by nature, not those who have become so, from some adventitious cause : the meaning therefore is, those who are blind

Blindness :—In Baku-bai, 2, Bom. H. C. R., 5. It was held that a daughter, becoming incurably blind in infancy, cannot inherit.

3. “ An enemy to his father :” One, who ill-treats his father during his life-time, or one, who is averse to performing his obsequies when dead.

4. “ One who is addicted to vice :” One, who by reason of his crimes and vices, is excluded by his relations from drinking water in company with them.

5. Thus YAJÑAWALKYA : “ All those brothers who are addicted to vice, lose their title to the inheritance.”

6. “ Addicted to vice :” That is, adhering to a contrary or an improper course, such as drinking, gaming, &c.

7. So the text, "An out-cast, his offspring, an impotent person, one lame, insane, or an idiot, a blind man, one afflicted with an incurable disease, should be supported, since they are excluded from the inheritance."^(b)

8. "Lame:" That is, one who cannot walk with both his feet.

9. "An Idiot:" One who is incapable of receiving [instruction in] the "Vedas."

10. So NAREDA : "Those of the family, who are afflicted with a long and painful disease, idiots, those who are insane, blind, or lame, should be maintained ; but their sons are partakers of the inheritance."

11. "Long:" That is, from the period of birth.

12. "Painful:" Such as the leprosy, &c.

13. Their sons however if devoid of these faults, are partakers of shares.

17. The incompetency of the wives of such persons to inherit has also been declared by the following text.*—"Their childless wives conducting themselves aright, must be supported, but such as are unchaste, should be expelled and so indeed should those who are perverse."—Their daughters also should be maintained until provided with husbands."(a)

CHAPTER IV.

ON DIVISIBLE AND INDIVISIBLE PROPERTY.

SECTION 1.

On Property liable to Partition.

1. CATYAYANA has declared the property which is liable to partition : "What belonged to the paternal grandfather, or to the father, and any thing else [appertaining to the coheirs having been] acquired by themselves; must all be divided at a partition among heirs."(a)

(a) Coleb. Da. Bh., Chap. VI. Sec. I., paras. 1-2.

Whatever is acquired at the charge of the patrimony is subject to partition. Sheo Dyal Tewaree, 9, W. R., 61; Wym, 55; Shreenarain Borah, 6, W. R., 219; 2, Macn. H. L., 162, 164, 165; Raja Baidyanund Sing, 5, Sel. Rep., 198, new edition, 235; Sheopersad Sing, Ibid, 76, new ed., 101; Koshul Chuckerbutty, 1, Ibid, 335, new ed., 448; Sreenath Serma, 1, Ibid, 15, new ed., 19.

A family dwelling house is subject to division. Hullothur Mookerjee, Marshall, 35; Shama Soondery Dossee, Bourke, 327; Koonwar Bejoy Keshab Roy, 2, W. R. Mis., 30. A purchaser in possession of a share. Buddun Chunder Maduck, 5, W. R., 218; Eshan Chunder Banerjee, 8, W. R., 239. A house built by one member at his own expense on property belonging to the family was held not to be divisible. Khooderam Serma, 2, Macn. H. L., 153; 1, Sel. Rep., 35, new ed., 46. Where A had built rooms on joint property, it was argued that all the plaintiffs could ask was division and not the removal of the buildings. But the High Court ordered the buildings to be removed. Guru Das Dhar, 1, B. L. R., 108; Janki Sing, S. D., 1856, 761; Indra Narain Sing, Ibid, 1857, 765.

According to Bengal School a widow can claim a division of her husband's estate. Bhyroo Chund Rai, 1, Sel. Rep., 27, new ed., 36; Neelkant Rai, Ibid, 58, new ed., 77; Rancee Bhovani Dabca, Ibid, 135, new ed., 179; Musst. Jumony Dossee, Macn. Cons. H. L., 64.

2. "And any thing else:" The particle "and" is here connected with "themselves;" Therefore from the use of this particle which occurs in the expression "and acquired by themselves," the acquisition of another is also to be understood : provided however such acquisition have been made through the joint-stock, or by [joint] personal labour.

3. Consequently the acquirer has two shares of wealth which has been acquired by the expenditure of the joint-stock, and the rest have only one share each. So VYASA says : "Whatever wealth a man gains with the aid of the patrimony, by valour and the like, the brothers are sharers therein. To him must be allotted two shares, and the remainder should be made equal sharers."

4. "To him:" That is, the acquirer, and this is reasonable ; for the acquisition is made on the part of the acquirer both by the use of the common property, and by personal labour ; but on the part of the rest, simply by means of the joint-stock.

Two co-heiresses, in joint possession of property, are in the nature of coparceners, and one of them can enforce partition against the other, notwithstanding the limited character of their tenure, and although such partition might not be binding on the reversioners. Sreemutti Pudmoni Dasi, 6, B. L. R., 134.

The rule of impartibility applicable to zemindaries does not extend to personal property of a zemindar, left at his death, and such property is divisible amongst his sons after his death. Raja R. G. N. Deo, 5, Mad. H. C. R., 331, Katama Natchier, 9, M. I. A., 539 ; Secretary of State, 7, M. I. A., 476.

5. In like manner, when an acquisition is made by two persons : by the personal labour of the one, and by means of the wealth, and of the personal labour of the other, then the acquirer by means of personal labour alone, has one share, and the acquirer by wealth and labour has two shares, by parity of reasoning.

6. Therefore these three descriptions of property, viz., ancestral property, wealth acquired by a father, and that which has been acquired by the expenditure of joint-stock, are partible among all ; but wealth acquired by individuals through their own exertions [such as partnership in trade, &c.] must be shared exclusively by the acquirers. This is settled.

7. Wealth however acquired by science, and such other means, without the use even of joint-funds, must be shared with parceners equally or more learned, not with less learned, or unlearned parceners. The text of CATYAYANA declares : " No part of the wealth which is gained by science, need be given by a learned man to his unlearned coheirs ; but such property must be yielded by him to those, who are equal or superior in learning." (b)

8. The term "learning," above, refers alike to the words equal and superior, like the eye of the crow*

NOTE.

* The crow is supposed monocular.

(b) The ordinary gains of science are divisible when such science has been imparted at the family expense and acquired while receiving a family maintenance : but the rule is otherwise, when the science

[looking two ways.] Therefore the meaning is, parceners, equally or more learned."

9. But if during the period of acquisition of science by one brother, another brother should through his own personal exertions, and by means of his individual wealth, support the family of such brother, then, even though utterly ignorant, he is entitled to a share of the wealth which his [acquiring] brother had gained by means of science. Thus NAREDA declares : "He who supports the family of a brother employed in the acquisition of science, shall even though ignorant, receive a share from the wealth obtained by means of such science."

10. "Ignorant." That is, though a fool.

11. But all the parceners, whether learned or ignorant, are entitled to share in wealth which has been acquired by science, imparted to them by their own family, their father and the rest. VRIHASPATI has been imparted at the expense of persons not members of the learner's family. Chalakonda Alasani, 2, Mad. H. C. R., 56; the above case was cited with approval and followed by the Bombay High Court in Bai Mancha, 6, Bom. H. C. R., A. C., 1. In Calcutta High Court, however, Mitter, J., remarked as follows :—His (plaintiff's) case in the Court below was that the defendant received his education from the joint estate, and that he is consequently entitled to participate in every property that has been acquired by the defendant by the aid of such education. But this contention is nowhere sanctioned by the Hindu Law, and I see nothing in justice to recommend it. Dhunok Dharee Lal, 10, W. R., 122 says : "Whatever wealth has been earned through valour by brothers, who have derived science from their family, or even from their father, is partible."

See remarks of the Privy Council upon the above rulings. Paulien Valloo Chetty, 4, Cowell's I. A., 109.

12. By the words "or even," the grandfather, the uncle and the rest are intended. "Earned through valour;"—the gains of valour acquired by means of the expenditure of the joint-stock, for it will be hereafter declared, that wealth acquired without the expenditure of the joint-stock is indivisible.

13. CATYAYANA has particularly described the gains of science, as follows : "What has been gained by the solution [of a difficulty] after a prize has been offered, must be considered as the gain of science, and is not included in partition, [among coheirs.]—What has been obtained from a pupil, or by officiating as a priest, or for [answering] a question, determining a doubtful point, or through display of knowledge, or by [success in] disputation, or for superior [skill in] reading, the sages have declared to be the gains of science, and not subject to distribution. The same rule likewise prevails in the arts ; for the excess above the price ; [of the common goods,] and that which is gained through skill by winning from another a stake at play, must be considered as acquired by science, and not liable to partition. So VRIHASPATI has ordained."

14. "Gained by the solution of a difficulty:" As where one agrees with another, "If you resolve this well, then will I give you so much wealth." What is obtained after this stipulation in consequence of a good solution of the difficulty, is indivisible.

15. "Obtained from a pupil:" That is, from one to whom instruction has been afforded.

16. "Officiating as a priest:" That is, what has been received as a fee, for having performed for a person, the duties of family priest, ("Purohit.")(d)

17. Also on the occasion of one having "propounded a question," relative to any particular science, what he bestows on a person, through satisfaction, at having received from him a complete answer.

18. "So likewise for determining a doubtful point:" That is, for a determination on a question, proposed with a view to the removal of a doubt, and in this form: "I will give this gold or other consideration to him, who dispels my doubts on this point of Law;"—What in fact is gained (after such a proposition being made,) for having dispelled the doubts of the proposer.

19. Or what is gained by a third person deciding justly between two disputant parties, who mutually appeal to him for his judgment, in the determination of a doubt in a matter of dispute.

20. "Or for the display of knowledge:" The meaning of which is, what has been received as a present or so forth, for having luminously exhibited one's own knowledge in the sacred ordinances, &c.

(d) The fees received by Porohits from Jujmans are now partly voluntary gifts and partly payments for work and labour done, and neither of these is the subject of partition under Hindu Law. Jowahir Missr., S. D., 1857, 362; Hurogobinda Surma, Ibid, 1850, 296; Ramakanta Surma, Ibid, 1852, 398.

21. "So by [success in] disputation:" That is, what has been obtained by getting the better of another in an argumentative discussion.

22. So likewise, where any particular thing is to be given to one of several Brahmins, who reads the "Vedas in a superior manner." So also, what is gained by painters, goldsmiths, [or other artificers,] by the exercise of an art or science.

23. Also what is "obtained by winning from another at play;"—All of these are gains of science and indivisible with the rest.*

24. CATYAYANA has stated a special rule: "Wealth gained through science, which was acquired from a stranger, while receiving a foreign maintenance, is termed acquisition through learning."

25. Therefore, an acquisition made through science imparted by others, than a father or an uncle and the rest, [of the acquirer's own family,] and without the expenditure of the joint-stock, must be shared with parceners more or equally learned, but not with those who are less so, or who are wholly ignorant.

SECTION 2.

On Property not liable to Partition.

1. On this subject NAREDA says: "Excepting wealth gained by valour, property received with a wife,

NOTE.

∴ Vide (7 and 8) Supra.

and the gains of science, these three are indivisible ; as also a paternal gift made through affection.”(a)

2. The meaning of this text is, that since the gains of valour, what has been obtained from the parents-in-law, &c. on account of having espoused a wife, the gains of science, and what has been received through affection from a father and others, are indivisible ; therefore, setting these four aside, the rest [of wealth] is divisible. This is connected with the subject of partition of inheritance. MENU says : “ Wealth acquired by learning, belongs exclusively to him who acquired it. So does any thing given by a friend, received on account of marriage, or presented as a mark of respect to a guest.”*(b)

3. “ Given by a friend.” Obtained from a friend.

4. “ Received on account of marriage.” That is,

7. "Ancestral property before usurped:" Supposing any one heir without the expenditure of the joint-funds, or unaided by the exertions of the other heirs, to recover such property, it is not divisible among them.(c)

13. MENU and VISHNU have both declared other descriptions of property to be indivisible : “Clothes, vehicles, ornaments, prepared food, water, women, and furnitures for repose or for meals, are declared not liable to distribution.”†

14. “Clothes :” Apparel for the body.

sacrifice, a field, a vehicle, dressed food, water and women, are not divisible among kinsmen.”(f)

21. “A place of sacrifice :” That is, where sacrifices are made, or the image of a god is placed ; but not wealth obtained by sacrificing, since that has already been included in the gains of science. Thus CATYAYANA : “The path for cows, the carriage road, clothes, and any thing which is worn on the body, should not be divided, nor what is requisite for use, nor intended for arts.” So VRIHASPATI declares.(g)

22. “What is requisite for use :” What is serviceable, such as books, for the use of the learned, should not be divided with fools.*

23. Therefore books must not be taken by the ignorant parceners ; they belong to those of them, who are learned.

Profits due to a religious trust are assets of the trust. Ram Soonder Roy, 5, Sel. Rep., 210, new ed., 250.

24. But the ignorant brother must receive from the learned parcener some other article, equivalent to the share of the books to which he is [otherwise] entitled, or else the value itself thereof; for if it be assumed that the ignorant parcener has no right whatever in the books, then, supposing books alone to constitute the common property, when a partition took place, the ignorant parcener would be entirely deprived of his share.

25. This is however inadmissible, since it would be at variance with the text, which declares : "They who are born, and they who are yet unbegotten, and they who are actually in the womb, all require the means of support : and the dissipation of their hereditary maintenance is censured."

26. Nor must it be supposed, that the application of this text is limited to other cases than the one in question; for if a true conclusion is obtainable without [such] limitation, an erroneous one is arrived at by the supposition [of it.]

27. In like manner, whatever is adapted to the exercise of the arts, should belong to those of the heirs who are artists, and not to the unskilled. The rule above stated holds equally good in this instance.

28. SANC'HIA and LIC'HITA declare : "No division of a dwelling takes place; nor of water-pots, ornaments, and things not of general use; nor of women, clothes, and channels for draining water." VRIHASPATI has so ordained.

29. An habitation, a garden, or the like, which has been constructed by one of the heirs, within the premises, belonging to the dwelling house, during the life-time of the father, is also indivisible : for it is fair to presume, that as the father did not prohibit, he permitted it.

30. This is likewise to be understood, supposing another of the heirs, to have constructed a similar habitation or the like, within the premises of another dwelling house [belonging to the father.]

31. “ Things not of general use :” Utensils for purposes of food ; culinary, &c.

32. “ Women :” Other than female slaves.

CHAPTER V.

ON A SECOND PARTITION OF PROPERTY AFTER THE RE-UNION OF COPARCENERS.

1. Re-union is in the first place described for the purpose of explaining a partition made by re-united coparceners.

2. On this subject VRIHASPATI says: "He who being once separated, dwells again, through affection, with his father, brother, or paternal uncle, is termed re-united." (a)

3. Therefore where a person has been once dis-united from his father and the rest ;—afterwards the former partition is annulled by mutual consent of the

(a) A re-union in the sense of Hindu Law must be made by the parties, or some of them, who made the separation. If any of their descendants think fit to unite, they may do so ; but such a union is not a re-union in the sense of Hindu Law, and does not affect the inheritance. Vishwanath Gungadhur, 3 Bom. H. C. R., A. C. J. ; Tara Chund Ghose, 5, W. R., 249. It was considered, and it was held that where re-union has taken place among certain members of a Hindu family after partition, the members of the re-united family and their descendants succeed to each other to the exclusion of the members of the branch not re-united. In the case of Raja Suraneni Venkata Gopala Narasingha, 3, B. L. R., 41 : their Lordships in the Privy Council held that the onus of proving re-union is upon the party pleading that there has been a re-union after partition.

See also Kuta Bully Viraya, 2, Mad. H. C. R., 235, where the point arose, but was not decided.

Where a family re-unites the presumption arises, that they are joint in interest. Frankishen Paul Chowdary, 10, M. I. A., 403 ; 5, W. R., P. C., 11.

separated parties, and in consequence of an agreement being concluded to the following effect, "the wealth which is thine, is mine,"—"that which is mine is thine," they resolve on dwelling in the same abode.—This is considered re-union.(b)

4. Here, since the father and the others are particularly specified, re-union takes place with those who are alone described, and not with nephews and the rest, who are not named; otherwise, the specific mention of father and the others would be unmeaning. Such is the opinion according to the Dāya-Bhāṣya.

5. The followers of the Maithila school are of opinion, that the use of the term father, and the rest, is figurative, and that re-union takes place, when those, whose right to a share of the common property is established by their birth, re-associate, after having once separated: consequently, that re-union can occur with nephews and the rest.

6. With regard then to a partition made by re-united parceners:—

(b) This definition of re-union is not very explicit. Mr Colebrooke renders thus :—When, after having made a partition, they live together, through mutual affection, as inhabitants of the same house, annulling the previous partition, and stipulating, that "The property which is thine, is mine; and that, which is mine, is thine."—Vide Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch. VI., Sect. I. para. 13.

According to Hindu Law, if only one brother out of four separated entirely, it is a virtual separation of all; and although the remaining three brothers continue still joint, they are supposed to have re-united. Jadub Chunder Ghose. Vyv. Durp., 2nd ed., 222.

7. In a second partition, made by re-united brothers, the eldest son has no right of primogeniture, but all the brethren of the same class must have equal shares. VRIHASPATI says : "Among brethren, who being once separated, again live together, through mutual affection, there is no right of primogeniture, when partition is again made." (c)

8. Here among brothers or others, connected by parity of relationship, re-associated and unassociated, the re-united parceners are first exclusively entitled to the wealth of the deceased re-united parcener. For a text which will be hereafter recited, declares, that "A re-united [brother]* shall take the share of his re-united [coheir.]"

9. In default of such re-united parcener, the disjointed parceners related as above, are entitled to the succession.

10. In like manner, supposing a father, who has made a partition among his sons, and taken for himself the share allowed him by a law, while unassociated with his sons, to beget another son, and afterwards to die, then this son born subsequent to the partition, is entitled to his father's share of the wealth : and not a son who was formerly separated.

(c) Sons share equally in the property of their deceased father ; the eldest has no claim to a greater share than the rest on the ground of primogeniture. Bhyroo Chund Rai, 1, Sel. Rep., new ed., 36 ; Sheo Buksh Sing, 2, Ibid, new ed., 340 ; Taliwar Sing, 3, Ibid, new ed., 402 ; Issur Chunder Carformah, Macn. Cons. H. L., 74 ; Sivananaja Perumal Sethurayar, 3, Mad. H. O. R., 75.

11. In like manner the son, who is born after a partition, is not entitled to share in the partition of [the wealth of] the brothers, who were formerly separated [from the father.]

12. Thus VRIHASPATI says : "The younger brothers of those, who have made a partition with their father, whether children of the same mother, or of other wives, shall take their father's share. A son born before partition, has no claim on the paternal wealth ; nor one, begotten after it, on that of his brother. They have no claims on each other, except for acts of mourning and libations of water."

13. The younger brothers:" That is, those born subsequent to a partition.

14. If a father should die after having re-united himself with any one of his sons whomsoever, then his wealth is equally shared by the re-united sons and those born subsequent to the partition, according to the text, [of MENU and NAREDA] that "A son, born after a division, shall alone take the paternal wealth ; or he shall participate with such [of the brethren] as are re-united with the father."*

NOTE.

* MENU 9. 216.

K 2

SC-87

15. A special rule is however to be regarded: where an acquisition has been made by a re-united father, by means of his individual wealth, and through his own personal labour and exertions, such acquisition shall belong exclusively to the son born after a partition, and not to another son who was re-united. (d)

16. VRHASPATI says: "All the wealth which is acquired by the father himself, who has made a partition with his sons, goes to the son begotten by him after the partition. Those born before it, are declared to have no right."

17. Here by the use of the word "himself," the author shews the acquisition to have been made with individual wealth, and by means of personal exertion.

18. In like manner a debt incurred by a disunited father on his own account alone, shall be discharged by the son born after partition exclusively. "As in the wealth, so in the debts likewise, and in gifts, pledges, purchases," being the remainder of the text above quoted. (16)

19. Where however a debt has been incurred by a re-united father, for the sake of the community, it shall be discharged both by the re-united parceners, and the sons born subsequent to a partition.

(d) A son born after division takes the share allotted to his father on division. Coleb. Da. Bh. Ch. VII., 1—5; Coleb. Mit., Ch. I. Sect. VI., 1—7. Vyv. Mayuk., Ch. IV. Sect. IV., 33-34. Smṛiti Chundrika, Ch. XIII., 6, 7, 11; 1, W. and Buhl., 33.

20. One born after partition, is one who has been born of a conception which took place subsequent to partition, for without conception, there can be no act of procreation.

21. Hence, if a partition be made among sons, while the conception of the woman be yet unknown, then the property which had been divided must be re-collected and a second partition take place, at which the son born of such conception, will be entitled to his share with those brothers who had formerly separated; but the paternal wealth must not be shared with him. (e)

22. What has been declared with regard to the right of a son born after partition to succeed to the wealth of his father, relates to a father's own acquisition, since it is impossible that any partition of the ancestral property should take place until the mother's and the step mother's courses have ceased, and supposing even such a partition to have been made by mistake, it would have no effect, as being contrary to law.

23. All sons, whether born subsequent to partition or otherwise, are entitled to participation in such property; consequently if a father should accidentally have made a partition of ancestral property consisting of land, &c., and live separate after having taken the share, to which he is by law entitled, still the son born after partition, would be entitled to obtain from his brother and the rest, a share in the wealth derived from the grandfather, and the former partition having been illegally made, must be considered null and void.

(e) A son born after partition is entitled to share with his brothers, if he have foetal existence at the time of the partition, and if he be otherwise capable of inheriting to an ancestral property. Vyv. Durp., 2-3; Coleb. Da. Bh., Ch. VII., 12-13 and annotation, thereon. 1, W and Buhl. 33; Yekeyannau, 4, Mad H. C. R., 307.

24. The text of VISHNU on this point declares, that "Sons, with whom the father has made a partition should give a share to the son born after the distribution."

CHAPTER VI.

ON PARTITION MADE BY A FATHER OF ANCESTRAL, AND OF HIS OWN ACQUIRED PROPERTY.

1. A partition made by a father of his own acquired wealth, is regulated by his will alone ; but in regard to a division of the ancestral property, the circumstance of the cessation of the mother's courses must be associated with the father's will. This is the difference. (a)

2. Thus VISHNU declares : " When a father separates his sons from himself, his will regulates the division of his own acquired wealth." (b)

3. But in regard to ancestral property, GAUTAMA says : " After the [demise of the] father, let sons share his estate, or while he lives, if the mother be past child-bearing, and he desire partition."

4. It should not be argued that this text of GAUTAMA is also applicable to a father's own acquired property ; for if it be alleged that partition of the father's acquired wealth takes place indeed on the cessation of the mother's courses, it would follow that the text [of GAUTAMA] which declares: " A son begotten after partition takes exclusively the wealth of his father," would be wholly irrelevant; since no son can be born on the extinction of the mother's courses.

(a) In Bengal, a son cannot compel his father to divide. The distribution is thus pointed out in Raja Suraneny Lukshmi Venkama, 3, Mad. H. C. R., 40. See also Kumalakant Chuckerbutty, 4, Sel. Rep., 322, new ed., 410.

(b) In Bengal, a father may unequally divide his self-acquisition or moveable property among his children. Macn. Cons. H. L., 65 ; 2, Macn. H. L., 147.

5. It must not be asserted, that this last cited text of GAUTAMA relates to ancestral property, and is consequently not irrelevant, for supposing such to be the case, a son born after partition, would be debarred from participation in the ancestral property, and consequently deprived of subsistence : which is forbidden by the text, declaring "They who are born, and they who are yet unbegotten, and they who are actually in the womb, all require the means of support and the dissipation of their hereditary maintenance is censured."

6. Nor should it be said that the son begotten after partition would not be deprived of subsistence, since he would be entitled after his father's death to that share of the ancestral property, which had been taken by him, for supposing the father to have dissipated the whole of such property, the son would inevitably be deprived of subsistence.

7. The fact then is, that this text of VISHNU : "When a father separates his sons from himself, his will regulates the division of his own acquired wealth," is useful, as shewing, that the father's will is absolute in regard to the division of this wealth, and accordingly, that the text of GAUTAMA which exhibits the concomitancy of the cessation of the mother's courses with the will of the father, is strictly applicable to ancestral property. This is correct.

8. Hence in a partition made by a father of his own acquired wealth, he may take as much of it as he pleases, and divide the remainder among his sons according to the text of VISHNU already quoted, and the following text of HARITA : “ A father, during his life, distributing his property, may retire to the forest, or enter into the order suitable to an aged man ; or he may remain at home having distributed small allotments, and keeping a greater portion. Should he become indigent, he may take back from them.” (c)

9. “ The order suitable to an aged man :” That is, retirement.

10. “ Should he become indigent :” Meaning, should he have spent the whole of his wealth.

11. If a father should give to any one of his sons a greater share, by reason of his good qualities, or of his piety, or of his having a numerous family, or of his incapacity, such a distribution is authorized by law.

12. NAREDA says : “ For such as have been separated by their father with equal, greater or less allotments of wealth, that is a lawful distribution : for the father, is lord of all.”

13. “ Lord :” That is, possessed of the power to alienate at pleasure : consequently, this text relates to property acquired by a father himself, by reason of the impossibility of the existence of such a power as above described, in regard to ancestral wealth.

(c) A father in Bengal making a division of his self-acquired landed property, must reserve his own legal share, as long as his wife is capable of bearing children ; for otherwise, after born children might be left unprovided for. 2, Macn. H. L., 145.

14. A father must not however, while afflicted by sickness or disorder, or labouring under distraction of mind, or inflamed with anger, or influenced by partiality for the son of a favourite wife, distribute a less or greater share to one of his sons, without the existence of any of the causes above-mentioned : for the text of NAREDA declares, " A father who is afflicted with disease, or influenced by wrath, or whose mind is engrossed by a beloved object, or who acts otherwise, than the law permits, has no power in the distribution of the estate."

15. "Engrossed by a beloved object:" Such as excessive partiality, for the son of a favourite wife.

16. But when a father makes a partition of the ancestral property, he may take two shares for himself, and allot to each of his sons a single share : for the text of VRIHASPATI which declares, " The father may himself take two shares at a partition made in his lifetime," relates to ancestral wealth.

17. It must not be supposed that this text refers to the father's own wealth, since it would contradict the texts of VISHNU and the rest, which declare, that what a father may in such case take, depends entirely upon his' own will ; and as he may take a greater or less share, at his pleasure, the restriction of two shares only, would be useless.

18. A father has not the power to make an unequal distribution of ancestral property, consisting either of land or a corrody, or slaves, even though any of the causes before-mentioned namely, the superior qualifications of one particular son, &c. should exist, and the text of YAJNAWALKYA, which declares : " The ownership of father and son is the same in land, which was acquired by his father, or in a corrody, or in chat-tels," is intended to restrain the exercise of the father's will ; for (although contrary to the received opinion) [of equal ownership between father and son] it is impossible that, as long as the father, the owner of the ancestral property, continues to survive, his sons should have ownership therein. (d)

19. But the father possesses a power in regard to ancestral property, other than land (and the descriptions above-mentioned,) such as pearls, gems, similar to that which he has in the disposal of his own acquired wealth. YAJNAWALKYA declares : " The father is master of the gems, pearls and corals, and of all [other moveable property :] but neither the father, nor the grandfather, is so, of the whole immoveable estate."

(d) A son has no right in the ancestral property inherited by his father during his father's life. Kumula Kant Chuckerbutty, 4, Sel. Rep., 322, new ed., 410. The gift by a father of the whole ancestral estate to one son, subject to the pecuniary provision for the others, is valid. Eshan Chundra Rai, 1, Sel. Rep., 2 ; Ram Coomar Nace Vachuspati, 2, Ibid, 45, new ed., 52 ; Ramtonoo Mullick, 1, Knap., 245 ; Juggomohan Roy, Morton's Rep., 90 ; Huro Lal Chowdhory, 3, W. R., 226 ; Radhanath Chowdhory, 6, Sel. Rep., 35, new ed., 40 ; Raja Nobokishen, Macn. Cons. II L., 356.

20. Here, by the specification in the first instance, of gems, pearls and corals, and afterwards by the use of the word all, gold and other effects, exclusive of the three descriptions of property, consisting of land, &c. are intended. The word whole, again, which occurs in the second portion of the above text, is made use of for the purpose of shewing, that a prohibition does not exist against a gift of immoveable property, not incompatible with the due support of the family. Thus it is stated in the Dāya-Bhūga.

21. In like manner, a father may at his pleasure, allot to his son, the deduction of a twentieth from his own acquired wealth, or the ancestral property. YAJNAVALKYA says: "If a father make a partition, let him separate his sons at pleasure, and either dismiss the eldest with the best share, or if he choose, all may be equal sharers."—Here the first half of this text relates to a father's own acquired wealth, and the last refers to ancestral property. This is the opinion stated in the Daya-Bhaga.

22. When a father makes a partition of his own acquired property, he should give a share equal to the share of a son to such of his wives, as are destitute of male issue. A text of VYASA declares: "Even childless wives of the father, are pronounced equal sharers."

23. The expression "of the father" in the sixth case serves to denote, that this distribution is made by him: for it will be hereafter stated, that step-mothers are not entitled to shares, at a partition made by sons.

24. This donation of equal shares occurs, where no peculiar property has been bestowed on a wife, by her husband and the rest. So YAJNAWALCYA says : " If he make the allotments equal, his wives, to whom no separate property has been given by their husbands or their father-in-law, must be rendered partakers of like portions."

25. Where peculiar property has been bestowed on some of the wives, the other wives destitute of male issue, must be rendered by the father partakers of wealth, to the same amount.

26. But where such peculiar property has not been given, then they must be rendered equal sharers with the sons. This is the law in the case, where the sons are made equal sharers.

27. According to the opinion of the Misras, where a father has allotted lesser shares to his sons, and reserved the greater portion for himself, equal shares must be made up to his wives from his own portion.

28. In the case however of peculiar property having been given, [to all the wives,] then they will only receive half a share by the rule of analogy, observed in the case of a superseded wife, who has received peculiar property, and who is entitled to receive only half the gratuity [otherwise] given to a wife on her supersession.

29. So the text of YAJNAWALCYA : " To a woman, whose husband marries a second wife, let him give an equal sum, as a compensation for the supersession, provided no separate property have been bestowed on her : but if any have been assigned, let him allot half.

30. The wealth which is bestowed on a first wife, by a man desirous of marrying a second, is termed a gift of supersession, for the object of it is to contract a second marriage.

31. As much as has been given to a second wife, so much should be bestowed on the first wife. This is the meaning, and conformable to the opinion of the Dāya-Bhāga. The Misras however assert, that when peculiar property has been bestowed, then there is no gift of a half share, since it is unauthorized by any text.

32. The son of a Sūdrā, by a female slave, may at the will of his father, be rendered an equal sharer with the son, born of his wedded wife. On the decease of his father, he is entitled to half a share ;—in default of such a brother, and of a daughter's son, he is entitled to the whole of his father's wealth : but if there be a daughter's son, he must be an equal sharer with him.(e)

(e) This is not the case with superior classes.—G.

An illegitimate son of a Chastriya, one of the three regenerate caste, by a Sūdrā woman cannot, by the Hindu Law of Inheritance, succeed to the inheritance of his putative father, but he is entitled to maintenance out of his deceased father's estate. Chowtreea Run Mordun Sein, 7, M. F. A., 78; 7, Sel. Rep., 292, new ed., 348; Pershad Singh, 3, Sel. Rep., 132, new ed., 176; 2, Macn. H. L., 119.

The Hindu Law independently of special usage or custom does not make illegitimacy an absolute disqualification for caste so as to affect in the relations of life, not only the bastard, but also his legitimate children. Pandaiya Telaver, 1, Mad. H. C. R., 478.

33. Thus YAJNAWALCYA declares : " Even a son begotten by a Súdrá on a female slave, may take a share by the father's choice : but if the father be dead, the brethren should make him partaker of the moiety of a share : and one who has no brothers, may inherit the whole property in default of daughter's sons."

34. "By the father's choice :" That is, at his pleasure.

35. "In default of daughter's sons :" But if there be a daughter's son, then the son of the Súdra will be entitled to participate equally with him. The participation is in this case equal, according to the rule by which it is thus settled, when no specification exists to the contrary. It is so stated in the Daya-Bhaga.

CHAPTER VII.

PARTITION BY BROTHERS, AFTER THE FATHER'S DECEASE.

1. Partition by brothers is not lawful during the life-time of the mother, notwithstanding ownership of wealth is vested in them on the decease of the father. The text of MENU, "After the [death of the] father and the mother, the brethren, being assembled, must divide equally the paternal estate : for they have not power over it, while their parents live,"* indicates, that partition should take place after the death of the mother.

2. If however a partition be made during the life-time of the mother, then she must be made an equal sharer with her own sons, according to the text [of VRIHASPATI] which declares, that "the mother should on the decease of her husband be made an equal sharer with her sons." (a)

3. Here since the term mother relates to the

(a) Mother's share on partition, equal to that of a son, where no separate property has been allotted to her, but otherwise she is only entitled to half of his son's share. 2, Macn. H. L., 65 ; Shib Chunder Bose. Macn. Cons. H. L., 62 ; Kumalmōnce. Ibid, 90.

natural parent, the step-mother does not participate, but she must be maintained with food and raiment. (b)

4. In like manner, in a partition about to be made of the grandfather's wealth by grandsons, the grandmother must be made an equal sharer. By the expression "similar to mothers," in the text, "All grandmothers are pronounced similar to mothers," it is shewn, that as the mother is entitled to an equal share in a partition of her husband's wealth, made by her own sons, so in a partition about to be made of the grandfather's wealth by grandsons, the grandmother has an equal share with them.

5. In this instance likewise the contemporary wives of the grandmother are not entitled to participate ; they need only be maintained.

6. For the reason above stated, (§ 3) the term grandmother refers exclusively to the natural parent of the father. This is the received opinion : although in fact, considering the use of the words "all" and "grandmothers," (in the plural number) in the text above quoted, it is reasonable, that the contemporary wives of the grandmother should be allowed to participate.

7. But the followers of the Maithila school assert, that the word mother in this text of VRIHASPATI : "The

(b) The mother of one son is not entitled to a separate share, upon a partition made between that one son and his half-brothers. Joymonce Dossee, Macn. Cons. H. L., 64. A son, succeeding to his father's estate, must maintain his step-mother and her daughters. 2, Macn. H. L., 118; Anand Monce Dossee, S. D., 1852, 563 ; Lalla Joteelal, Suth. F. B., 173.

mother should on the decease of the husband, be made an equal sharer with her sons," (§ 2) intends also the step-mother, in support of which opinion, they adduce the following text of that author of the same import : " In his default, the mother is an equal sharer with her sons ; mothers are equal sharers with them, and daughters are entitled to a fourth part."

8. "In his default :" In default of the father, when a partition is about to be made by grandsons.— "The mother :" she who has male offspring.— "Mothers :" Step-mothers, destitute of male offspring ; all these are sharers in equal proportions with their sons.

9. The sisters also of these sharers must be rendered participators to the amount of a fourth share receivable by their brothers respectively, for the purpose of marriage.

10. The followers however of the Maithila school assert, that the sisters should be made partakers in as much as will suffice for the object of their marriage, and according to their opinion also, the contemporary wives of the grandmother are entitled to participate in the wealth of their husband. This should be understood.

11. A partition made by brothers of the same class, is of two descriptions ; either with specific deductions, or equal. A text [of VRHASPATI] declares : " Partition of two sorts is ordained for coheirs : one in the order of seniority, the other by allotment of equal shares."

12. "Order of seniority:" indicates partition by the mode of deduction;—It must not however be supposed that because the mode by equal division is more generally practised, and the form by deduction seldom observed, that the former is the only mode sanctioned by law, and the latter unauthorized: for a partition by the mode of deduction may take place at the will of [younger] brothers by reason of greater veneration [for their elder brother.]

13. But the mode by equal division is the only one adopted in the present age, because younger brothers are now-a-days seldom met with, who entertain this great veneration, and elder brothers deserving of it are [equally] rare.(c)

14. "Seniority:" That is, priority of birth among brothers, all born of mothers or step-mothers alike by class. A text of MENU declares: "As between sons, born of wives equal in their class [and] without [any other] distinction, there can be no seniority in right of the mother; but the seniority ordained by law is according to birth."*

15. "Women equal in their class:" That is, of the same class.

NOTE.

* MENU 9, 125.

(c) The allotment of a superior portion to the eldest brother, is token of reverence, is obsolete. Coleb. Da. Bh., Chap. III., Sect. 2, paras. 26, 27. Smṛiti Chundrikā, Ch. III, para. 16; Mitācshara, Chap. I., Sect. 3, paras. 4—7.

16. An appointed daughter and a legitimate son are entitled to equal participation. The appointed daughter is not entitled to the share of an elder brother by reason of priority of birth, for a text of MENU declares : "But a daughter having been appointed to produce a son for her father, and a son [begotten by himself] being afterwards born, the division of the heritage must in that case be equal : since there is no right of primogeniture for a woman."*

17. The deduction of a twentieth takes place only in the case of partition among brothers not uterine, but in a partition made among brothers of the whole blood alone, the eldest is entitled to two shares. Thus VRIHASPATI declares : "All sons of regenerate men, born of women alike by class, should share alike, after giving a deduction to the eldest."

18. "Women alike by class:" Meaning, where there are several of them.—Since the mention of a deduction occurs in this text with respect to "sons born of [different] women alike by class," therefore, what has been declared regarding the eldest taking two shares, by that part of the text of MENU,† which says : "Let the eldest take a double share," and also by the text of GAUTAMA : "Let the first born have a double share," must be understood to apply to the case of a partition made among uterine brothers alone, ac-

NOTE.

† MENU 9. 117.

according to the principle which admits of a special provision, limiting the operation of a general rule.

19. Further, since the above cited text [of VRIHASPATI] specifies "women alike by class," Brahmana and other sons born of women of different tribes are entitled in their due order, to four, three, two and one share. Thus MENU declares: "Let the son of the Bráhmāni take four parts; the son of the Chsetriya three; let the son of the Vaisya have two parts; let the son of the Súdrá take a single part [if he be virtuous.]*

20. A Súdrá is entitled to one share, because he is bound to perform certain religious initiatory ceremonies, after the birth of his son.

21. The term "regenerate," in the above quoted text of VRIHASPATI, (§ 17) is merely illustrative; consequently the deduction of twentieth, and the other [namely the double share] take place even in favour [of the eldest son] of a Súdrá, who is equally entitled to a larger share, since he, without distinction, confers benefits by delivering his father from the hell, named Put.

22. Therefore the text of MENU,† which declares: "For a Súdrá is ordained a wife of his own class and no other: all produced by her shall have equal shares, though she have a hundred sons," should be considered as prohibiting the marriage of a Sūdrā with a woman of a different class, and declared for the purpose of forbidding an unequal distribution by reason of difference of class ;—not as prohibiting the deduction of a twentieth, &c. This is considered to be right.

NOTE.

* MENU 9. 153.

† MENU 9. 157.

23. In a partition made between legitimate and adopted sons, the legitimate son has two shares, and the adopted sons, who are of the same class with the father, take one share ; but adopted sons belonging to an inferior class, are not entitled to any share.—They need only be supported with food and raiment.

24. NAREDA declares : “ All these sons are pronounced heirs of a man, who has no legitimate issue by himself begotten, but should a true legitimate son be afterwards born, they have no right of primogeniture. Such among them as are of equal class, [with the father,] shall have a third part as their allotment ; but those of a lower tribe must live dependent on him, supplied with food and raiment.”

25. “ Heirs : ” That is, partakers of the father’s whole estate.—“ Such among them : ” Meaning, such sons as are of equal class [with the father.]

26. A partition should be made by sons of the wealth of their deceased father, which remains after discharging his debts ; or with the consent of the creditors, the partition may take place first, and the debts be afterwards discharged.

27. NAREDA declares : “ What remains of the paternal inheritance over and above the father's obligations, and after payment of his debts, may be divided by the brethren; so that their father continue not a debtor."

28. Here from the expression, "So that the father remain not a debtor," it appears, that the debts may be cleared off subsequent to the partition : otherwise, it would be unmeaning.

29. In like manner, whatever excess has been expended by one brother, in consequence of his having a large family, should not be taken into account at the time of the partition. But a partition should be made of the wealth, which is actually forthcoming.

30. The text of NAREDA declares : " Among unseparated kinsmen, let not one restore what has been expended. A partition should takeplace of the visible wealth, corrected for income and expenditure."

31. From the use of the particle ["va,"] in this text, the meaning of the word strictly is intended to be conveyed. Consequently, having compared the amount of the wealth, which had accumulated at a time when no partition had taken place, with the amount expended, a division should be made of the balance actually remaining.

32. VYASA has declared, that the initiatory ceremonies of uninitiated brothers and sisters, should be performed from the paternal wealth : " Uninitiated brothers should be initiated from the father's wealth by those elder brothers, for whom the ceremonies have been already performed," and the sisters should also be disposed of in marriage ; if there be no wealth of the father, they must be initiated at the expence of their brothers. A text of NAREDA recites : " If no wealth of the father exist, the ceremonies must without fail be defrayed by brothers already initiated, contributing funds out of their own portions."

CHAPTER VIII.

ON THE DISTRIBUTION OF EFFECTS CONCEALED.

1. The partition of effects concealed by some one parcener at the time of partition, and subsequently discovered, is next declared.

2. On this subject the following text of MENU occurs : " When all the debts and wealth have been justly distributed according to law, any thing which may be afterwards discovered, shall be subject to an equal distribution."—The distribution of such concealed effect with the concealer, should be exactly conformable to that, which had been before made. A less share is not to be given to him by reason of his concealment, nor is he on that account to be altogether excluded from participation : This is the meaning of, "shall be subject to an equal distribution." It is not intended by the text, that all shall share equally in the concealed effect, as there exists not any reason for the prohibition of the deduction of a twentieth, and it would moreover follow, that the Brahmana and Chsetriya sons would participate equally. Thus CATYAYANA declares : " Effects which are withheld by them from each other, and property which has been ill-distributed, being subsequently discovered, let them divide in equal shares. So BHIRGU has ordained."

3. "Subsequently discovered." By this it is shewn, that partition is to take place of the concealed effects alone, and not that a second partition is to be made, of what has already been once divided.

4. "Property which has been ill-distributed:" Intending that property, of which a distribution has been made contrary to law,—through error and the like, must be again divided according to law, for that part of the text of MENU,* which declares: "Once is the partition of inheritance made," is intended to forbid a second partition after the first has been legally made. It is therefore determined, that the division of concealed property must be made with the person, who concealed it, as has already been declared.

NOTE.

* MENU 9. 157.

CHAPTER IX.
ON THE ALLOTMENT OF A SHARE TO A COPARCENER
RETURNING FROM ABROAD.

1. VRIHASPATI declares : “ Whether partition have or have not been made, whenever an heir appears, he shall receive a share of whatever common property there is.”

2. “ An heir :” An inheritor.

3. “ Common property :” Common to all.

4. Further, “ Be it debt, or a writing, or house or field, which descended from his paternal ancestor, he shall take his due share of it, when he comes, even though he have been long absent.”

5. By this it is not meant, that he alone shall take his due share of it, but that his descendants, (who are Sapindas) down to the seventh degree, shall also take their shares,—as the same author has declared : “ If a man leave the common family and reside in another country, his share must no doubt be given to his male descendants, when they return. Be the descendant, third, fifth, or even seventh in degree, he shall receive his hereditary allotment on proof of his birth and name. To the lineal descendants, when they appear of that man, whom the neighbours and old inhabitants know by tradition to be the proprietor, the land must be surrendered by his kinsmen.”

6. “ Old inhabitants :” Meaning cognates.

7. “ Neighbours :” Those residing in the vicinity.

8. "Land:" This expression is merely used figuratively for any description of common property.

9. Therefore, it is a settled point, that one who travelled into a foreign country, at a period when no partition had taken place, and returned after a long lapse of time, as well as his descendants, as far as the seventh in degree, after they shall have made themselves recognized by the elder inhabitants and neighbours, shall obtain a lawful share of the heritable wealth.

10. This is the law relative to the allotment of a share to a parcener, who had journeyed into a strange land.

11. But descendants only, as far as the fourth degree of one, who had remained all along in his own country, are entitled to share his wealth, for it has been formerly declared, that the fifth in descent and the rest confer no benefits on a deceased owner, since they are not competent to present funeral oblations to him at solemn obsequies.

CHAPTER X.

ON PARTITION BETWEEN SONS BORN OF THE SAME
MOTHER, BUT OF DIFFERENT FATHERS.

1 VISINU says : “ If there are two sons begotten by two fathers, but born of the same mother, let each of them take that which was the father’s property and not the other.” Let the son take the wealth of him, from whose soever seed he is produced, and not the other, that is, the son born from another’s seed should not take it. Such is the meaning.

2. The law regarding equal participation, &c., does not therefore apply to this case.

3. In like manner, in a partition by sons of this description, let each son take, (exclusively of the other ;) of the wealth of their mother, what was given to her, by their fathers respectively, according to the text of NAREDA, which declares : “ If two sons begotten by different fathers contend for the wealth of the woman, let each of them take that which was his father’s property and not the other.”*

4. In the case however of an acquisition made exclusively by the mother, the participation is equal.

* MENU 9. 191. and cited from his institutes by numerous compilers : but referred by Jimuta Vahana and Rughnandana to Nareda. It is not, however, found in the institutes of his author. Vide Cole. Dāya Bhāga, Chap. X., § 17, Note.

CHAPTER XI.

ON THE POWER OF ONE PARCENER TO MAKE A DONATION OR OTHER ALIENATION OF JOINT PROPERTY.

1. Some maintain, that a gift cannot be made by one [parcener] of joint property, a prohibition against such transfer being contained in this text [of MENU] : "The prohibition of giving away, is declared to be eight-fold : A man shall not give joint property, nor his son, nor his wife, nor a pledge, nor all his wealth, nor a deposit, nor a thing borrowed for use, nor what he has promised to another ;" and they have further deduced the want of the right of one parcener to make a gift of the whole immoveable estate, or of what is common to the family, from the two following texts of VYASA : "A single parcener may not without the consent of the rest make a sale or gift of the whole immoveable estate, nor of what is common to the family."—"Separated kinsmen, as those who are un-separated, are equal in respect of immoveables ; for one has not the power over the whole, to give, mortgage or sell it."

2. The opinion held by those, who maintain the invalidity of a gift or sale, [of joint property,] at the will of one parcener, is grounded on the doctrine, that co-parceners possess a general property in the estate :—in fact, that all of them have a right to the whole estate. This opinion is incorrect ; for it has been rejected by the author of the Dāya-Bhāga, as unsupported, by authority.

3. Accordingly, the author of the Dāya-Bhāga, having cited the texts of VYASA, for the purpose of refutation, and taken up the argument maintained from those texts by those of the opposite opinion, namely, the want of authority of any single parcener to make a gift, says : “ For here also as in the case of other goods, there equally exists a property consisting in the power of disposal at pleasure,” and adds “ But the texts of VYASA exhibiting a prohibition are intended to shew a moral offence : since the family is distressed by a sale, gift or other transfer, which argues a disposition in the person to make an ill use of his power as owner. They are not meant to invalidate the sale or other transfer.” This is determined.

4. “ As in the case of other goods :” Meaning goods, which are not common.

5. “ Here also :” “ In the very instance of land held in common.”

6. “ Equally exists :” Intending that there is no distinction of ownership.

7. Since therefore there is no general property of parceners in the whole estate, it is fallacious to suppose, that a plurality of owners constitutes community, and community must therefore be considered as meaning the state of not being separated. For as propriety exists in the common property, even before partition, there is nothing to prevent the gift or other alienation by a parcener of his own share, even at that time. This is the opinion entertained by the author of the Daya-Bhaga, who maintains a partial right to a certain portion [of the estate ascertainable by partition] vested in each individual owner. Accordingly NAREDA says : " When there are many persons sprung from one man, who have duties apart and are separate in business, and character, if they be not accordant in affairs, should they give or sell their own shares, they do all that as they please, for they are masters of their own wealth," and thereby, shews that in transactions about to be concluded by one parcener, he has the power to give or otherwise dispose of his own share, without the consent of the rest.

8. It should not be said, that this text refers to a state of separation, for since the want of ownership [by one parcener in the portion allotted to another] is in that case clearly determined, the consent of either to the transactions of the other, is totally out of the question. Such being the case, the text [of VRIHASPATI above cited] which enumerates common property as not being a subject of donation, must be considered merely in the light of a prohibition, and not as meant to invalidate the transfer.—It is thus stated in the Smṛiti Sara and other books.

9. Therefore, a gift by a parcener of his own share of the common property is valid, whether such gift have been made antecedent, or subsequent to partition.

10. The debt incurred by a slave for the support of the family of his master, while in a foreign country, or elsewhere, must be entirely discharged by the master.

MENU . says : " Whatever contract a dependent may conclude for the benefit of the family, let not his master, whether in his own or in a foreign country rescind."*

11. "A dependent:" A slave.

12. "Contract, debt, &c."

·NOTE.

CHAPTER XII.

ON SLAVERY.

SECTION I.

Descriptions of Slaves.

1. Slaves are of fifteen descriptions and are thus described by NAREDA : "One born [of a female slave] in the house of her master ; one bought ; one received [by donation ;] one inherited from ancestors ; one maintained in a famine ; one pledged by a former master ; one relieved from a great debt ; one made captive in war ; a slave won in a stake ; one who has offered himself in this form, "I am thine ;" an apostate from religious mendicity ; a slave for a stipulated time ; one maintained in consideration of service ; a slave for the sake of his bride ; and one self-sold, are fifteen slaves declared by the law." ¶

2. "Born in the house :" Born of a female slave in the house [of her master.]

3. "Inherited :" Succeeded to from ancestors.

4. "Maintained in a famine :" By reason of a dearth.

5. "Pledged by a former master :" Granted as a pledge in consideration of a loan.

6. "One relieved :" One who has consented to become a slave, in consequence of being relieved from a great debt. Such is the meaning.

7. "I am thine :" One who not being the slave of any one, surrenders himself in this form to slavery.

8. "An apostate from religious mendicity :" Abandoning the order of Sunnyasee.

9. "Stipulated :" One who influenced by some motive or other, contracts an engagement in this form, I am thine for a certain period.

10. "Maintained :" One who has consented to become a slave even in a time of plenty, for the sake of obtaining a maintenance.

11. "A slave for the sake of his bride :" One who has consented to slavery under the influence of desire. VRIHASPATI says : "But the man who cohabits with the female slave of another should be considered as a slave for the sake of his bride ; he must perform work for her master like other slaves, or like servants for pay."

12. "Her master :" The master of the female slave.

13. NAREDA declares, as follows, respecting the apostate from religious mendicity : "The man who is an apostate from religious mendicity, becomes the slave of the king, giving a pair of cows, and he ought never to be emancipated nor purified."

14. Those only of the Chsétriya and Vaisya tribe who thus apostatize, become slaves to the king; but Bráhmaṇas of this description, should suffer banishment, in lieu of slavery. Thus CATYAYANA says: "Where men of the three twice-born classes forsake religious mendicity, let the king banish a man of the sacerdotal class, and reduce to slavery a man of the military or commercial tribe."

15. The expression "military or commercial" [Chsētra and Vis] appears in the form of a conjunctive compound, and if considered in the [accusative or] 2d case, it becomes the object of the transitive verb.

SECTION 2.

On Emancipation from Slavery.

1. Of the slaves above-mentioned, the first four: (one born in the house, one bought, one received, one inherited,) and the slave self-sold, are not of right released from slavery, unless they be emancipated by the indulgence of their masters.

2. "A slave maintained in a famine," becomes emancipated on repaying what he consumed during the dearth, and on giving a pair of oxen.

3. "A slave maintained only," is enfranchised by relinquishing his maintenance.

4. "A slave for the sake of his bride," is emancipated by quitting her.

5. "A slave pledged," is redeemed from his slavery to the creditor, on the re-payment of the debt incurred by his [former] master.

6. Should any one of these slaves rescue his master from danger menacing his life, or from impending peril, he is entitled to emancipation.

7. CATYAYANA declares : "A free woman, or one who is not a slave of the same master, becoming the bride of a slave, also becomes a slave to her husband's owner, for her husband is her lord, and that lord is subject to a master."

8. Here by reason of the connection implied by the term slave, the woman is understood to become the female slave of the master, suggested by that term.

9. The female slave is of two descriptions : first, not mancipated to any one ; and secondly, the slave of another.

10. The woman of the first description becomes simply by her marriage with a slave, the female slave of the master of her husband.

11. The female of the second description becomes a slave with her husband's permission, but not otherwise. •

12. In like manner by parity of reasoning, if a man, not the slave of any one, marry a female slave, then he becomes a slave to the master of his wife.

13. But should a man, the slave of another, marry with the consent of his master, he becomes the slave of the master of the female slave.

14. In like manner, if a female slave unite herself in marriage with a slave, without her master's permission, then each remains the property of their masters respectively, but their offspring should be shared by both owners.

15. It must not be supposed from the following texts of MENU, "Whatever man, owns a field, if seed, conveyed into it by water or wind, should germinate, the plant belongs to the land owner ; the mere sower takes not the fruit.—Such is the law concerning the offspring of cows, and mares, of female camels, goats, and sheep, of slave girls, hens, and milch buffalos,"* that such offspring belongs exclusively to the owner of the female slave ; for the female slave therein mentioned, refers to one, who has been once married, [and afterwards contracted another marriage with the slave of a different owner.]—But the offspring as above described of a female slave [regularly] married, must be shared.

16. Thus is concluded the Compendium of the Law of Inheritance, by SRI CRISHNA TERCALANCARA BHUTTA-CHARRUJ.
